Oct. 2, 1924.

Mr. Otie Lee Jackson,
116 S.W. 7th Ave.,
Mineral Wells, Texas.

Dear Otie;

Your letter of Sept. 21st. to hand and it was certainly very sad to know that your Father was dead, had often thought of him but didn't know where to write him until I happened to see Mr. Willis Burnette, a man I knew when I was a boy.

I note he left you all a very nice little estate. I want you to take some real good advice from good financeers in your town as to how to hold on to your estate, if you divide it up $15,000 or $20,000 isn't much unless you know how to handle it it will soon go in this day and time of shrewd financial operators.

Pardon me for suggestings but the children that are still in school I would suggest that you keep them in school and give them the very best education possible. A good education is worth more than all the money that can be given to them, give them a college education if you can get them to take it. In the meantime my advice to you is to be careful in the handling of your Father's estate and know just what you are doing and where you are at and don't let it be gobbled up and torn up, if possible hold it together and then take the income and divide it among the heirs.

Some time I am coming to Texas to visit Uncle Efford Collier's family, who are closely related to you and if you would like to know their names and address I will cheerfully give it to you. Uncle Efford was Grandfather Robert M. Collier's brother and went to Texas long before I was born. We tried many years to find out where they were and finally last November I happened to locate them.

Will be glad for you to keep in touch with me, say every two or three months, I am so busy I would not have time to have a very close correspondence.

JCC:C

Sincerely,